THE CASE OF RAS. WIMBISH-HE STILL IMPROVES.

Chances that Re will Recover-The Tobacco Crep-Improvements-

Land Buyers.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch,] SEPTEMBER 22, 1887.
This is the nineteenth day since the shooting of Ras. Wimbish and the fourteenth day since the unusual operation of Isparotomy was performed on him. His condition this morning is highly favorable. His temperature is normal and pulse 95, appetite good, and he rests well. He suffers a little pain, which is due to the sutures having been removed. The abdominal avenue has united, with the exception of the aper-ture for the drainage tube. He moves himself feeely, and rests on either side. Suppuration of the wound is very much diminished. The pus discharge is entirely laudable. From outward ap pearances the wounded intestine must have united entirely. His food is peptonized beef, raw eggs, and milk-toddy. He begins to desire solid food. The prospects for ultimate recovery are most encouraging. His medical attendant and all the other physicians manifest great interest in his case. The public schools have opened under the most favorable anspices all through the county, and the attendance as David Garrick and Mr. Lane, that is nausually good.

Tobacco of this year's crop is sold here every day. The old crop is about exhausted. Pright primings have sold for $20 per hundred pounds. To meet the demands of the bright tobacco improvements.

There is considerable inquiry now for land in this section, and recently Mr. A. P. Lemon, of Loudoun county, purchased near here a tract for $2,700.

Petersburg Cotton Exchange or Indian Special telegrem to the Dispatch.]

Petersburg Cotton Exchange was organized this evening by the sellers and buyers of cotton in the city. The following officers were elected: President, David Callender; Vice President, It. T. Arrington; Secretary and Treasurer, Walter J. Jarratt. The Board of Directors consists of the three officers above named and Messrs. John H. Rodgers, R. M. Dobie, and H. L. Plumber. A board of arbitration was also elected consisting of five members. The meeting was largely attended, and every handler of cotton will become a member of the exchange. A constitu-tion and by-laws were adopted with rules governing the cotton traffic in Petersburg. The exchange will occupy temporary quarters until more com-modious and convenient accommodation can be secured.

B There is considerable inquiry now for land in this section, and recently Mr. A. P. Lemon, of Loudoun county, purchased near here a tract for $2,700. There are a dozen or more Loudouncounty settlers in this vicinity. They are well pleased, and are energetic and thrifty farmers.

Mr. A. Kells, of Kansas, arrived here yesterday with his family. He has purchased a large tract of land in this county from Dr. Armstrong near Abbyville.

When the advantages of our climate, soil, and market facilities are more fully known there will doubtless be a great influx of land-buyers.

Mr. T. M. McKennan, of Florida, has recently bought five acres of land on the outskirts of our town for a future home for his family.

Befuse Used for Food in Paris.

(Paris dispatch to the London Telegraph.)
A margarine act is sadly needed in Paris if we are to believe M. Pierre Delcourt, the painstaking author of a volume of what he might have called 'Le Ventre de Paris" had not M. Emile Zola been beforehand with him in the field with that title. M. Delcourt has taken a great deal of trouble to de scribe in detail what Parisians eat, and to analyze its component qualities for the benefit of his fellow-citizens. Everybody know that French chefs, cordons bleus, and ordinary cooks use butter in nearly every dish which they either "create" in their own peculiarly artistic fashion or make up from the time-honored receipts of brillet Severin Severe themes Brillat-Savarin, Soyer, or the more homely volume in yellow boards enti-tled "La Cuisine Bourgeoise." M. Delcourt makes an astounding state-ment, which is enough to terrify housewives out of their wits, when he says that most of the butter sold in Paris is largely composed of fatty river-soum which has been collected at the months of the great drains that bring the sewage of the city down to the Seine. The worst, however, is yet to come. M. Delcourt next deliberately states that there are speculative and energetic persons who follow the butter-tasters on their rounds in the Central market and carefully collect the butter which has been tasted after it has left the mouths of the officials. This refuse is sold to the perambulating or stationary fried-po-tato vendors, to the alfresco makers of pancakes and fritters, to the simmerers MEN REWARDED.

Its superlor excellence proven in millions of the simmerers of fried fish, and to poor people who look for cheapness and quantity before high prices and rare quality. M. Delcourt, however, in his indefatigable read goes beyond butter; he points out that everything used in Paris as food is boldly and unblushingly adulterated. Bread has been made with old, wormenten sea-biscuits and damaged flour and it has in this way caused an epidemic of typhoid-fever more than once. Green harricots, looking in the market quite plump and fresh, have been made out of old vegetables, which have been steeped in water, caused to swell, and then colored by chemical means. New green peas have been manufactured out of old gray once colored with verdigris.
